About me

- A recent graduate who possesses a passion and love for architecture.
- My creative and enthusiastic approach means I can create a visually stunning piece of work.
- I have a wide breathe of transferable skills that include excellent communication, good organisation, ability to work within a team and more.
- My proven reliability and strong work ethic allows me to drive my ability to create something of high quality.
- A willingness to take up training opportunities.

Communication

- Great interpersonal skills.
- Ability to provide a clear and concise stream of communication.
- A confident and positive outlook.

Co-ordination

A true team player with the skills needed to work within a team, such as:

- Strong problem solving skills.
- Adaptable in collaborations.
- Good planning and organisational skills.

Interests

I am a keen photographer, favouring black and white photography in some occasions coloured photography too. Having the ability to capture a moment and architecture with just a single frame is very fulfilling.

University Projects/ Experience 2011

Project Manager

London Metropolitan University Foundation Degree Summer Showcase. Managing a summer showcase. Re-design with full plans, sections and elevations and renovate a staircase space in the university where student's projects were showcased.

After this success I was continuously nominated for team manager roles for group works. This role allowed me to enhance my leadership and communication skills.
